APC-The Voice of Prosthodontics in Canada/ La voix de la prosthodontie au Canada

Dr. Duncan Chambers
President, APC

Hello to all my allies in the Specialty of Prosthodontics. It has been a particularly challenging year for myself with retirement from the Canadian Armed Forces and starting a private practice. The Canadian Forces Dental Services is the largest group dental practice and dental organization in Canada and includes two clinics internationally, supports worldwide troop deployments and participates in multiple humanitarian missions. With all the moving around I have done in the last 22 years I feel a special connection with my military colleagues, mainly because I know they face the same day to day clinical and professional challenges.

I feel the same way about fellow Prosthodontists and the members of the Association of Prosthodontists of Canada. I have learned in discussion with the APC executive, councilors from across Canada and through my association with provincial Prosthodontic associations that we all face very similar challenges. Yet, I feel there has been little collaboration between Prosthodontists and the other dental specialties. The old saying, "if you ask a group of dentists to form a firing squad, they would stand in circle" is indicative of the strong and diverse positions that dentists have on almost any issue. Imagine the difficulty in getting nine different specialty organizations to work together. It has taken over a decade of discussion and the tireless efforts of many; particularly, Francine Albert, Past-president APC and Chris Robinson of the CAOMS, to form a national organization of dental specialists, now officially called the Canadian Dental Specialty Association (CDSA). It is important to note that this is not an individual membership organization that you will each be requested to join, but rather it has only nine members, each specialty organization. The APC executive has endorsed this national association and looks forward to working with the other eight dental specialties. This is a pivotal step forward in collaboration amongst the dental specialties and will give us a collective voice to the Canadian Dental Association. We have a voice, now see if we can be heard and effect change.

Your opinions are important and I encourage all of our members to speak out by contacting their Regional Councilors, members of the APC Executive and myself. We are all available through the APC website.

I invite you to attend the upcoming Annual General Meeting of the Association of Prosthodontists of Canada in Toronto on 24 September as well as the Canadian Academy of Restorative Dentistry and Prosthodontics Annual Scientific Meeting.

Look for upcoming exciting changes to the APC website that will make it more modern, user friendly and to include separate areas for the public and APC members. Thank you Christine Wyatt, our administrator, for your efforts.

Now that I am soon to be located in British Columbia, and because the Oilers did not do so well this year, I feel the need to close with: Go Canucks!!

Kind regards,
Duncan Chambers

Bonjour à tous mes alliés prosthodontistes. Cette année fut particulièrement un défi pour moi de par mon départ des Forces Armées Canadiennes et le démarrage d'une pratique en cabinet privé. Les services dentaires des forces canadiennes forment la plus grande pratique de groupe et organisme dentaire au Canada. Ils incluent deux cliniques internationales, ils supportent le déploiement des troupes partout dans le monde et ils participent à de nombreuses missions humanitaires. Je vis l'instabilité géographique d'une carrière militaire depuis 22 ans et je ressens une connexion spéciale avec mes collègues puisque je sais qu'ils vivent les mêmes défis cliniques et professionnels. Je ressens le même lien avec mes collègues prosthodontistes ainsi qu'avec les membres de l'association des prosthodontistes du Canada. Lors de discussions avec les membres de l'exécutif de l'APC, les conseillers d'un peu partout au Canada ainsi que par l'entremise de mon appartenance aux associations prosthodontiques provinciales diverses, j'ai appris que nous devons faire face à des défis très semblables. Toutefois, je reproche le fait d'avoir peu de lien avec les autres spécialités dentaires. L'ancien proverbe : "si on demande à un groupe de dentiste de former un peloton d'exécution, ils vont se placer en cercle" relate les diverses et fortes convictions de chacun par rapport à un sujet particulier. Maintenant tentez d'imaginer l'énorme défi qui est de rallier les neuf différentes spécialités dentaires sous un même organisme. Ça fait plus de dix ans que l'on parle d'une telle association et nombreux sont ceux qui ont contribué à en faire une réalité; particulièrement Francine Albert présidentes sortante de l'APC et Chris Robinson de l'ACCBMF. L'Association canadienne des spécialités dentaires (ACSD) regroupe les spécialités dentaires au Canada. Il ne s'agit pas d'une association de membres individuels mais plutôt de seulement neuf membres soient les spécialités. L'APC a appuyé la formation de cette association nationale et nous avons hâte de collaborer avec les huit autres spécialités. Il s'agit d'un grand pas de l'avant vers une collaboration entre les spécialités dentaires, ce qui nous donnera une voix collective auprès de l'association dentaire canadienne. Maintenant que nous avons une voix, maintenant voyons si nous pouvons nous faire entendre et engendrer le changement.

Vos opinions sont importantes et j'encourage tous les membres de l'APC de s'exprimer en contactant votre conseiller régional, les membres de l'exécutif de l'APC ou moi-même. Vous pouvez trouver nos coordonnées sur le site web de l'APC.

Je vous invite à assister à l'assemblée générale annuelle de l'association des prosthodontistes du Canada le 24 septembre 2011 lors du meeting scientifique de l'académie de dentisterie restauratrice et de prosthodontie canadienne, à Toronto.

Soyez aux aguets pour des changements excitants dans le site web de l'APC le rendant plus moderne, facile d'usage et avec des zones réservées au public et aux membres de l'association. Merci à Christine Wyatt, notre administratrice pour ses nombreux efforts. Depuis mon déménagement en Colombie Britannique et puisque les Oilers n'ont pas très bien performés, je sens le besoin de conclure en disant : Go Canucks!

Bien à vous,
Duncan Chambers

NEWS FROM CDSO (PREVIOUSLY COSA-NDSO)

The newly minted Canadian Dental Specialties Association last met on May 15th by conference call. Various administrative decisions were made, including the relocation of the head office and bank accounts to Ottawa from the current location in Edmonton. Office space has been sub-let from the Ottawa Dental Society in the same office building as the Canadian Dental Association.

The nine participating specialty associations include Canadian Association of Oral and Maxillofacial Radiology (CAOMR), Canadian Academy of Oral and Maxillofacial Pathology and Oral Medicine (CAOMP/OM), Canadian Association of Public Health Dentistry (CAPHD), Canadian Academy of Pediatric Dentistry (CAPD), Canadian Academy of Endodontics (CAE), Canadian Association of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgeons (CAOMS), Canadian Academy of Periodontology (CAP), Canadian Association of Orthodontists (CAO) and of course APC. Each organization contributed dues of $20 per member plus startup money (APC donated $500, based on our membership size).

CDSA is awaiting receipt of all specialty associations' logos to create its own stationery and board members will be working on a roles and responsibilities manual.

An introductory letter from the CDSA president will be sent to the Association of Canadian Faculties of Dentistry (ACFD), Canadian Association for Dental Research (CADR), Canadian Dental Association (CDA), Commission on Dental Accreditation of Canada (CDAC), National Dental Examining Board of Canada (NDEB), Royal College of Dentists of Canada (RCDC), Canadian Forces Dental Services and the Office of the Chief Dental Officer of Canada followed by a letter to the president of the Canadian Dental Regulatory Authorities Federation (CDRAF) to offer our services and request our involvement in the National Specialty Definition Process. The next meeting will be held on July 17.

MESSAGE FROM THE EDITOR

Dr. Bernie Linke | Vice President, APC

In the spring the University of Alberta had their 'White Coat Ceremony' for the second year dental students signifying the start of their involvement with providing patient care. The speaker, Dr. Kieth Manning, the Immediate Past president of the Alberta Dental Association, a prosthodontist and member of APC, gave an excellent speech causing me to reflect on my career, my appreciation for what we, as dentists, provide for our patients and how privileged we are in this profession. I was challenged to do my part to look after our profession as he spoke on professionalism and how close we are coming as dentists to losing the privilege of being viewed as a profession by the public and by government. Canadians are viewing dentists with less respect and less trust. A CDA IPSOS Poll of Canadians indicated that only 9% of the population trust their dentist and 7% value our services. What has changed within our profession that has resulted in such a low level of value and trust?

The drive for efficiency and profitability within our practices is necessary. However at what point do we cross the line where profitability becomes the main motivator rather than holistic patient care? The line is crossed when each patient is viewed as a project with a financial reward attached to its completion. It is a fine line to be sure and I would not want to convey that I always know where that line is for each patient: a guiding factor for me has been if my patient to some degree feels they have received a benefit from my treatment. In the area of prosthodontics, which has many areas that are subjective, this can be challenging at times. The more I take the time to allow my patients the opportunity to evaluate the treatment options I present and explain the treatment that will be provided, and then provide the treatment with excellence, the more appreciation I have received from my patients. We are privileged as prosthodontist to be able to provide treatment for our patients that can dramatically improve their function and appearance. Let us do our part to take some time with our patients to have them understand and value what we are providing for them.

The offering of our time and talents for endeavors other than those directly related to our practices has in my opinion significantly decreased over the last 30 years. Organizations with a long history of providing leadership and mentorship in all disciplines of dentistry are struggling to maintain their membership and member involvement. Dental schools have difficulty attracting prosthodontists to provide valuable input for students. The end result is an ever increasing disconnect between the leadership and mentorship that years of being and behaving as a professional can provide to students and new graduates.

My encouragement to all APC members is to become involved in some way outside of your practice that will promote dentistry, prosthodontics and the lives of those within our sphere of influence.

Au printemps, l'université de l'Alberta a tenu sa cérémonie des sarraux blancs pour les élèves de deuxième année de médecine dentaire. Ceci signifie leur début en tant que cliniciens prodiguant des soins cliniques. Le conférencier invité était Dr Kieth Manning, le président sortant de l'association dentaire de l'Alberta, un prosthodontiste et membre de l'APC. Dr Manning a livré un excellent discours qui m'a fait réfléchir sur ma carrière, mon appréciation du service que nous livrons à nos patients et comment nous sommes choyés d'exécuter cette profession. Il a parlé du professionnalisme et comment nous comme dentiste sommes sur le point de perdre le privilège de se faire respecter comme profession autant par le public que par le gouvernement. Les canadiens respectent moins les dentistes qu'auparavant. Un sondage de l'ADC rapporte que seulement 9% de la population fait confiance à son dentiste alors que 7% apprécient nos services. Qu'est ce qui a changé au sein de notre profession qui a résulté en un si faible niveau de confiance?

Il n'est pas à nier que la quête d'efficacité et de rentabilité dans nos pratiques dentaires est nécessaire. Toutefois, est-ce nécessaire que la rentabilité soit notre motivation première plutôt que le soin du patient? Il s'agit d'une ligne facile à dépasser particulièrement quand chaque patient est vu comme un projet avec une récompense monétaire en bout de ligne. Cette limite n'est pas toujours facile à définir toutefois la ligne directrice pour moi semble être si le patient perçoit qu'il a réellement bénéficié du traitement. Dans le domaine de la prosthodontie ou plusieurs objectifs de traitements sont subjectifs, la perception d'un bénéfice peut être floue. Il me semble que plus je prends le temps d'expliquer les options de traitement à mes patients ainsi que les marches à suivre pour chacune des options et finalement que j'exécute un traitement avec excellence, plus ces patients m'apprécient. En tant que prosthodontistes, nous sommes très privilégiés de pouvoir offrir des traitements qui ont un impact sur l'apparence et la fonction des patients. Il est critique que nous passions le temps nécessaire pour qu'ils comprennent nos efforts et puissent les apprécier à juste valeur.

Selon moi, le don de notre temps et de nos talents pour des projets autre que ceux reliés à notre pratique a significativement diminué au cours des 30 dernières années. Nombreux organismes avec une excellente réputation de leadership et de mentorat dans les disciplines de la dentisterie sont en difficulté par rapport à leur membership et l'implication de leurs membres. Les facultés dentaires attirent difficilement des prosthodontistes pour l'enseignement de leurs étudiants. En bout de ligne, il y a de moins en moins d'exemple de cliniciens démontrant du professionnalisme et de mentor pour les nouveaux gradués.

J'encourage donc les membres de l'APC à s'impliquer dans des activités en dehors de leur pratique privée qui vont promouvoir la dentisterie, la prosthodontie et exercer une influence sur les vies des gens dans notre environnement proche.

Dr. Francine E. Albert
Past President, APC

I was recently at the Academy of Prosthodontics meeting in Hilton Head, South Carolina. During the meeting fellow APC member John Zarb and I were received as active fellows of the Academy. I consider it a true honour to be welcomed into such a prestigious group. The Academy of Prosthodontics has a mandatory attendance policy which means that between 85-95% of its members are present at every meeting. I enjoy the high level of scientific content but moreover, the social activities during the week allow me to converse with world renowned prosthodontists. I am able to gather information on how to run a practice, what is their clinical experience with a particular material or even how to deal with a challenging patient. I look forward to this meeting every year and I want to thank my mentors Dr George Zarb and Dr Izchak Barzilay who were more than instrumental in allowing me to reach this objective.

Thinking back to the last APC- PCSP joint meeting in Napa Valley in 2010, I can't help but wish that the level of participation from Canadian prosthodontists was greater. As you can imagine, it is very difficult for an executive to set out goals in hopes of achieving them when the quorum is not met at our annual general meetings. Recently, a popular woman's magazine "coup de pouce" published an article on how to choose a dental specialist. The article went on to describe the Quebec dental specialties namely denturology. There was no mention of the field of Prosthodontics. The author concluded by thanking the Ordre des dentistes du Québec's communication director. The ODQ has since apologized for the misrepresentation made by the magazine. However what ensued was even more interesting...an exchange of over 50 emails between disgruntled Quebec prosthodontists who rallied to find solutions to our branding problem. We know we have a visibility problem, let's be proactive in order to make positive steps toward increasing public awareness. And I believe the best way to do this is by participating in our provincial and national annual general meetings so that a budget can be voted in to address this problem.

As my final challenge as past president of the APC, I encourage all my colleagues to make a point to be in Toronto for the joint APC/CARDP meeting September 24th 2011. It would be great to see such solidarity at the national level.

It was a pleasure serving you and I look forward to seeing you in future meetings.

Respectfully, Dr. Francine E. Albert

J'étais récemment au meeting de l'académie de prosthodontie à Hilton Head en Caroline du Sud. C'est lors de cette conférence qu'un collègue et membre de l'APC : John Zarb et moi avons été reçus comme fellow actifs de l'académie. Il s'agit d'un grand honneur pour moi de me compter parmi ce groupe de prosthodontistes de renommée. L'Académie a une longue histoire et la présence de ses membres est obligatoire à tous les meetings. Il s'agit d'une occasion pour se mettre à jour avec des présentations d'articles scientifiques de haut niveau ainsi que de participer à des activités sociales avec des collègues de renom. Souvent, je reçois des conseils très utiles sur la gestion de mon personnel ou encore sur le traitement d'un patient difficile. J'ai toujours hâte de participer à cette semaine de fellowship et j'en profite pour remercier deux mentors qui m'ont aidé à atteindre cet objectif soient : Dr George Zarb et Dr Izchak Barzilay.

Le dernier meeting de l'APC était dans la vallée de Napa en Californie. Et tous présents peuvent attester du haut niveau de présentations et des activités sociales. Toutefois, la participation des prosthodontistes canadiens était limitée et il fut difficile de rencontrer le quorum pour notre meeting annuel. Lorsque cette situation se produit il est d'autant plus difficile de faire avancer les dossiers au sein de notre organisation. Récemment, la revue "coup de pouce" publiait un article sur les diverses spécialités dentaires au Québec. On y nommait les spécialités tout en incluant la denturologie et sans faire mention de la prosthodontie. L'auteur concluait l'article en remerciant la directrice des communications de l'Ordre des dentistes du Québec. Depuis la parution de l'article, l'ODQ s'est excusée de cette information inexacte. Toutefois ce qui a suivi cet incident fut encore plus intéressant. J'ai reçu plus de 50 courriels de prosthodontistes mécontents qui tentaient de trouver des solutions à notre problème de visibilité. Je crois que nous devons faire de même au niveau national et tenter d'être proactif afin de solutionner ce problème avant qu'il ne s'amplifie davantage. Pour moi, la solution la plus simple est de participer activement aux réunions de mon association nationale afin que nous puissions collectivement voter un budget pour passer à l'action.

J'encourage tous mes collègues à être présents à Toronto le 24 septembre 2011 pour la prochaine reunion de l'APC conjointement avec l'ACDRP. En étant solidaires, nous accomplirons de plus grands exploits.

Ce fut un plaisir de vous représenter et à notre prochaine rencontre mes amis.

Respectfully, Sincèrement,

Dr. Francine E. Albert, Past President, APC and Dr. John Zarb, APC Member.

Our client is a successful prosthodontist in Vancouver, BC, looking to retire and to sell his well-established practice. A few characteristics of the practice are: low overhead, great cash flow, and an excellent location.

Seventy percent of the treatments are implant related (surgery & restoration), therefore the practice is also ideal for a general dentist or periodontist focusing on these types of treatments.
